THE precedent set by the Colonial Secretary on Wednesday in taking advantage of a motion for the adjournment of the Legislative Council to revert to an old debate is one that may be attended with inconvenient consequences to the Government. An official member has no greater privileges in debate than an unofficial member, and what was done by Mr. O'BRIEN may therefore be done by any other member. Ordinarily when the business of the day is concluded, day next, when several new features will be the Council adjourns without a motion to that effect, the Governor merely mentioning much appreciated. the date of the next meeting or that the adjournment is taken sine die. But ou Wednesday the Hon. G. T. M. O'BRIEN, like the comic singer with an encore verse because he had got some credit for his speech at the previous meeting determined to make an opportunity for supplementing it, which was unfortunate, as well for his ompany's steamer Zumlers, which was benched Regatta opened yesterday. A more genial tem- post Lane. Crawford & Co.'s boat had only own reputation as for the harmonious work ing of the Council. Following the precedent thus set, it will now be open to the unofficial members, on the conclusion of the business of the day at any meeting, good deal of useful local information, together to make speeches on any subject whatever, even although the said subject may have been debated and decided upon at a previous meeting. It might be useful if they took their sight-seeing will appreciate the following an early opportunity of using the weapon remarks made by the Sing pore Free Press :- rison and St. Patrick's Cups w re productive of the Sailor's Home gig got away first, and kept thus placed in their hands.

To reopen the breach of order. In the House of Commons great latitude is allowed on motions for adage of for the ventilation of grievances or th making of personal explanations, but it has been clearly ruled by the Speaker That the latitude is not unlimited and that it is irregular for a member to discuss Bills already disposed of or which are to be debated on future day. The Governor nevertheless allownesday last, which, if it were to be made at all, ought unquestionably to have been ninde at the previous meeting whom the Bill to which it referred was under discussion.

It is not at all char, on the other hand, of the Loan Ordinance. It is true that and Capt, Harris was unanimously elected in in the House of Commons there is a rule which forbids debate on the first read Hongkong is not bound by the rules of the House of Commons, having its own Standing debate on the first reading. Moreover, in SON, GUAVA, RASPBERRY, STRAW. debate is allowed before the first reading, or the motion for leave to bring in the Bill. It is not usual to introduce dobate at that not apply in Hongkong, therefore, even by analogy: We cannot suppose that Governor had any intention to give unfair "Garçon" himself and be the waited upon inrulings in the cases of Mr. WHITEHEAD and the Colonial Secretary on Wednesday, but it is unfortunate, as calculated to lessen con-very fairly with the question of the relative advantages of borrowing in gold and silver. Assuming the difference in the rates of intorest in London and locally to be 1 per cont. the dollar would have to fall 5d, before the colony would begin to suffer an actual loss in the payments on account of the debt in London as compared with what it would have had to pay had the foan been contracted locally. So long as the fall is less than 5d, there is an advantage in borrowing in London, and if instead of a full there should be a rise the advantage i of course so much the greater. No one knows what is going to happen to silver; the dollar may go up to 4s, or sink to 1s. 16d. It is not at all likely that it will do siderable difference between its present and future value is well within the range of posof one per cent, difference in the rate of inperionce of the past should be our guide in such matters. The last loan was contracted in gold, in obedience to the behests of the Secretary of State and against the general wish of the Colony. The dollar has singer 117 failer more than 5d, and the Colony is now paying more for interest and sinking lean been contracted locally at 1 per cent more than it was floated al in London. The currency of the Colony being silver we maintain that any loan it contracts ought lay ourselves open to the risk of having the burden of our indebtedness steadily and constantly increased by a widening diverconce in the relative values of gold and silver. Fortunately the burden will not be a very heavy one for the Colony to bear in any case, the annual charge for interest and amount, but as a matter of sound financial and not a gold one. The Smoking Concart Club will give a conert to-morrow night.

Sir Cool Smith has been successful in secur ing a considerable abatement of the demands of the War Office in respect of the provision of Larrack accommodation at Singapore, as will be seen by the following extract from a despatch from either the one or the other, but a very con. the War. Office to the Colonial Office:-With reference to your letter of the 3rd August last, respecting the provision of burrack accommoda thou at Slugupore, I am directed to acquaint von. sibility. The ex. War is prepared to agree to the proposal made by the Governor of the Straits Settlements that the two companies of Infantry should, for the present, remain at Penang, and that the Colony should not therefore be asked, at present, to provide barrack accommodation for these two compunies at Singapore as originally intended. Mr Bearetary Campbell-Bannerman would point out however, that even if accommodation for than were thus provided, the Colonial Governmont would receive as a set off, the barracks fand than it would have had to pay had the a d property at present occupied by the Troops t l'onang. It provides by Section that the widow and orphans of a contributor who retires from the survice on account of ill sinking fund being a comparatively small health or the abolition of his office before he is entitled to a pension, shall not be allowed to have any benefit from the Fund. This provision was principle we say the loan ought to but silver a great hardship and he Illustrated this by quoting a case in which an officer who, leave, suffered so seriously from ill-health that, seting on the advice of the medical attendant. the officer resigned his office before his leave expired, and six weeks afterwards he died. Had the officer not resigned he would still have been counted as in the service. The result was that now included in the register issued daily by Dr. | the provision which the officer had looked to be nade to his widew and orphans was taken away from them. By the Ordinances of Hongkong and Covion wher a contributor retires from the service on account of ill-health or abolition of his office; his widow and orphane do not lose the just of benefit. Marriage has been defined as a cage in which all who are invide are auxious to get out, and all who are Gap Rock. outside are intent on getting in. The d finition

The case may be easily imagined of a young Sub florn who has done his year's probation with a British regiment, and has just been appointed to the Staff Corps. He finds himself in a pative regiment with three other officers, the remaining four who make up the complement of eight being either at home or away with other regiments, acting for absentess, according to the way in the Staff orps. His arrival unkes a third in the Mess, the dining members being hintself, another Subaltern, and the Second-in-Command, an elderly Major, whose wife is at home, and who looks upon having to attend Mess every evening as a kind of purgatory. As the Major has a grievance, which he carefully nurses all dinner time, be rarely spouks to his youthful companio s. who, having soon each other at intervals all day, have nothing left to talk about in the evening, and so the ment is not a very lively one. It shas now a nominal income of Rs. 325 per measure, but by the time be has paid his Mess bill, his subscriptions, house-rent, servents and other expenses incidental to life in India, he counts bireself very fortunate if he has the odd Rs. 25 for himself. What then more natural than that, fliding himself thus in influence, he should turn his thoughts to matrimony? He has pictures of a home and a bright face opposite to him at table - a very different sort of thing from going to Mess evening after evening." New it is a well-known thing that from thinking about matrimony to matrimony itself is but a stop. So the Subaltoru finds it. He is in the habit of plying have tennis in the Station gardons every afternoon that there is no drill or parado. There, of course, he meets other young people of both sexes: Lawn-tonnis over, the young people saunter off, some to look at the English papers just arrived, and a couple or two to sit in the yerandah and watch the stars just coming out. When he takes to this litter amusement, the older frequenters of the library know that it is all up with him. The bachder Colonel shrugs his shoulders and winders anew, and for the - thousandth time, at the amazing felly of young mon and maidens. The collector's wife sake the Commandant's better half whether the young Subaltern has anything besides his pay, to which the latter returns on emphatic, " Not a ponny." When the General drops in to the library for five minutes, as is wont every evening just to see who is there, his attention is called. to what is going on by one of his lady friends. His remarks in reply need not be repeated. But our Lieutenant and his companion sit in the vermedah in blissful ignorance (as is always the case) that they are attracting any notice. But everyone but themselves sees clearly enough how it will oud, and the end is not long in coming. One morning it is given out that the young couple are engaged. All the hali is are much interested. The man regard the while business as folly, and look up in his fature as hopoless. His Colonel, in desprie all having another married officer in the regiment, and foreseeing that the Mess will have to be shut up, begs him to go into the Commissariat Department. His Adjutant tells him that married officers are the ruin of the service, and asks him if he knows Jinks of the toth, who has over ten children. and who is said only to be able to afford meat once a week, on Sunday? But he cures for none of these things. The future is without a cloud for him. Whatever mistakes other people may have made, he is quite safe. He is going to morry and live happily over afterwards. His flances has not a farthing in the world, but it would be sardid to couple the idea of rapees and exchange with such a creature. One is quite happy to-day. Let to-morrow take care of itself. The question is whether, now that everybody's income is practically cut down to about half, this happy-go-lucky view of matrimony and its obligations will still provail? It is true that if the young Subiltern dies, his widow will have a small pension and so will not starve. This is granted by that Military Fund (still existing for Staff Corps officers under another union) which John Jacob denounced so energetically, and which also grants an allowance for each shild should the father die. But even so, the prespoot before married officers is not of the brightest Wife and children to be sent home. boys and girls to be put to school, butcher's and buker's bills to be paid, mouthly remittaness to by sent home regularly, no matter how much exchange may go down: all these things must come hopie some day to our young Lieutenant as t'oy do to all other married men in the gorgoons Bust. In the Gorman and French Armies, no officer is allowed to marry unless he can show himself in a position to maintain a wife. In the British Army, no private soldier is allowed to marry without the permission of his Colonel. But the youthful British officer is allowed to take his own course in this matter. It is true that when he is with his English regiment, and shows a tendoncy to matrimony, his Unlonel commonly advises him to join the St. If Corps. Well, he joins the Staff Corps. and we have seen what happens to him. Will this light-heartedness in taking on themselves the most serious responsibilities of life still characterize British Subalterns in the future, as it has done in the past? Time will show, Mi

Perfect blendings of the Choicest Brands of the Highest Classes of Whiskies in their native purity, as produced in Scotland, absolutely untampered with. MATURED IN SHERRY CASKS. _ A LUXURY IN PURE SCOTCH WHISKIES. The letters "BOS" are the Name, Brand, and Registered Trade Mark of this matchless Old Scotch Whisky.

Enquisite blendings, possessing a flavour so trare, a character so novel and so entirely their own, that they may fairly claim the very first place among high-class stimulants. Claves judges pronounce them unique and unrivailed.

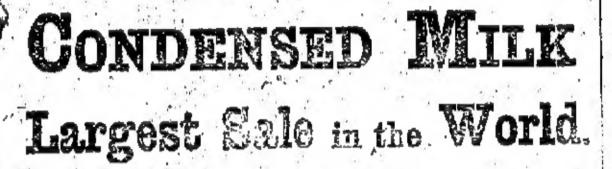

"BOS" Whiskies are remarkable for their "delicious individuality of flavour," mellowness and softness on the palate—"A very nectar," in marked contrast to ordinary blended Whiskies, which are more or less dominated by one or other of the Whiskies used in blending, which are more or less dominated by one or other of the Whiskies used in blending.

BOS" is sold in square subsite bettles, labelled and contraited, the quality being notified by a small latel on each bottle.

The proprietors are skilled blenders of Scotch Whiskies, but in all the experience of their Fina, extending over the present century, they have never been able to accomplish anything so fully complying with the most exacting tests, as is now presented in these special blen is of "BOS."

AN UNEXPECTED MEETING. After the marriage of Winnie and Tom Gregory, and a whole happy month spent aming the woods and wilds that surround the dreamy hand of the Lakes of Westmoreland, Gregory in his usual hearty style, proposed a visit to town "Haven't been there for many a long year, Winnie," he said. " 'Pon my soul, it wonly make a boy of me once more just to sit in the stalls and hear a good honest play."

Winnie, as a matter of course, assented mos readily, though for some reason or another un known, even to herself, a sudden fear had taken possession of her heart as he made the proposal It lay there for but a very short space of time then by an effort of will and reason she succeedod in banishing it.
